ARIZONA LAND MATTERS.

U. S. Surveyor General's Report for 1878.

This document was received and filed in the General Land Office a short time since. Following are remarks accompanying the statistical and tabular parts of it:
PRIVATE LAND CLAIMS.
For reasons fully given in my annual report for 1877, I have not entered upon a formal investigation of private land claims. Congress has been repeatedly asked to appropriate the small sum required to open and conduct this examination by existing law and your instructions, and its long delay has the appearance of a refusal to provide the means at least under present legislation. Notwithstanding my decided opinion that the duty should be performed by a commission or the courts, I must again put it on record that I have been ready at all times to enter upon the work. The continued influx of population for actual settlement and mining operations, increases the urgency of adjusting all titles to private land claims. I will give just one pointed illustration: Hundreds of miners are now at work in the Santa Rita mountains. Baca claim No. 3, authorized by section 6, act of June 21, 1890, is located in these mountains and covers land notoriously mineral. Notwithstanding the law authorizes the location of "vacant lands not mineral" only, the fact that the location has been made and is not finally approved or disapproved, enables certain men to cast a cloud upon mining titles in the Santa Ritas, and greatly retard mining progress.

GENERAL PROGRESS.

The Territory has made rapid progress during the past twelve months. The outlook is highly encouraging and in some respects exciting. The farmer and stock-raiser have generally made satisfactory progress, especially in the matter of growing better varieties and enlarging their business. Fruits are becoming comparatively plentiful and cheap. Insects have not damaged the crops, and, with slight exception, diseases have not destroyed animals. Mining products are rapidly increasing, and at no time in the territory's history has there been such activity displayed in mining operations. Labor is not in excess of the demand and is fairly remunerated. Beggarly and thieving tramps are only things of hearsay in Arizona.

Yellow Fever Incident in New Orleans.

A few weeks ago, one night, in an unpretentious cottage on Customhouse street, there lay dying a child sick of this dreadful malady. Ministering to its last wants was all that the unhappy parents could do, for the child was doomed, and in the small hours of the morning the spirit of the loved one passed away. The father then set to work to make arrangements for the burial of his child. He went to the armory, where the last of his money, ten dollars, and a few jewels were deposited. After searching high and low for some time he realized the fact that he had been robbed. He immediately told the police his piteous tale, and they encouraged him by promising to look for the thief. They found sufficient evidence to warrant the arrest of a negro who was seen prowling about the house. The father was called from the coffin of his child to come up to the court to make an affidavit. While there, giving a description of the jewels, he received a message that his wife had fallen a victim to the fever. Not waiting to sign the affidavit, he frantically rushed from the court-room to attend to the wants of his wife. The death of his child, and the sudden illness of his wife, and the loss of all that remained of his money so worked upon his nervous system that he also was claimed as a fit subject for the fever. The child was buried by friends. Within a day after the funeral the father expired, and the day after the mother's spirit followed that of her child and husband.

Jessie Fremont.

The San Francisco Chronicle says: Mrs. Fremont is a pleasing old lady, with full hair as white as snow. Time has dealt gently with her amiable countenance, and the wrinkles traced are only those of her cheerful smiles. Nearly fifty years ago her romantic marriage was a subject of national comment, and she mingled among the gay circles of Washington society, the adored and beautiful Jessie Benton, in the blush of young womanhood, and the great Pathfinder's proudest conquest. But the change has wrought a wonderful freshness of the family likeness, vividly recalling the patriarch of thirty years in the United States senate. She, too, is entitled to all the honors of a California pioneer, having crossed the plains and braved the hardships of the perilous journey with her fearless husband. When she again returned to the refinements of civilization it was as the consort of the first United States senator from the Pacific coast.

The Oregon legislature on the 17th elects J. H. Slater, democrat, to succeed Senator Mitchell, republican, as United States Senator. The new senator is reported as saying that he is not in sympathy with the inflation advocates, nor of a substitution of legal tender for national bank notes, and demands that currency shall be on a coin basis.

GEN. SHERMAN has arrived in San Francisco.

He leaves immediately for Oregon.
